Notes for REED FORBES:

Notice in local paper following death:

Mr. Reed Forbes, proprietor of Forbes Mill and one of the best known men on the Northside of Bedford, died at a Roanoke Hospital Monday evening after 6 o'clock, the news of his death coming as a shock to his hundreds of friends, few of whom knew he was critically ill. Mr. Forbes was 74 years of age, but up to a few months ago seemed to be in perfect health, with every prospect of many years of useful service to his family and community, but following the death of his wife in August his health began to fail, and during the past several weeks he was seldom able to go to the mill and was taken to a Roanoke hospital last week.

For nearly half a century Mr. Forbes was engaged in the milling business in Bedford county, and for the greater part of this time was proprietor of and actively in charge of the mill which bears his name, located five miles north of town on Big Otter. To his thorough knowledge of the business, which in itself was sufficient to insure successful operation, he added kindness of heart, scrupulously fair dealing, generosity, a happy nature, and fine personality, and in all the years he lived and labored in that community even the most exacting customer could find nothing to criticize. He was a member of Suck Springs Baptist church, a Christian gentleman of the best type, and his church, his community and his county have, by his death, lost a good and useful citizen.

Marriage Notes for JOHN FORBES and CORNELIA WELCH:

Cornelia May Welch, daughter of Clifton Bell and Sarah Agnes Toms Welch, and John William Forbes, son of Reed and Martha Jane Howell Forbes, all of Bedford County, Virginia, were united in holy matrimony on May 25, 1903 near Suck Spring Baptist Church in the Peaksville area of Bedford County, Virginia.

No one except the minister and John and Cornelia knew that there was to be a wedding that day. An all-day Baptist Association meeting was being held at the Suck Spring Church. There was a morning session followed by a picnic lunch and an afternoon session was scheduled for about two o'clock. The minister had agreed that he would perform a private ceremony for John and Cornelia during the break between lunch and the afternoon meeting.

John and Cornelia were to start walking up the narrow dirt road leading away from the church and the minister would recognize this as a signal to follow as though he was just taking a walk. John and his bride-to-be started out as planned. A moment later the minister casually rose to follow at a distance so as not to arouse anyone's suspicion. But, as if it might have been pre-arranged, a large number of other people who had finished their lunch and were milling about or sitting in the shade conversing, quickly formed what might have appeared to be a procession and fell in behind the minister and John and Cornelia. They apparently believed that there would be a short stroll and a return to the afternoon session at the church.

After walking a short distance on the dusty road, John and Cornelia came to a large flat outcropping of stone which had been left as part of the road bed by those who had originally laid out the route. In the middle of the road the stone was higher than on the sides. Buggy and wagon wheels could straddle the higher middle part and horses and people walking could stay to the sides. This stone in the road was a sort of landmark in the area.

As the bride and groom-to-be approached the stony part of the road, the minister came to face them and they stepped upon the higher stone. By this time, the others who had followed were gathering around the area, curious as to what had halted the procession and why the minister and the young couple were standing on the rock. Silence fell over the group as they heard the minister say, "Dearly beloved, we are gathered together at this place to join this man and this woman in the bonds of holy matrimony."

The service continued and John and Cornelia spoke their vows there on that stony place in the road. It could truly be called a marriage founded on the rock.

They lived together , through good times and the lean Depression days, from that day in May, 1903 until John passed away of a cerebral hemorrhage on January 16, 1951. They spent forty-eight years of their lives in a relationship that was as solid as a rock. They reared ten children, five boys and five girls. Cornelia died of congestive heart failure on September 27, 1957. They are buried side by side at Suck Spring Church cemetery in Bedford County, Virginia.

VSDB alumni saddened by death of "Big Bear"

By Hubert F. Grim III/staff
hgrimiii@newsleader.com

STAUNTON -- The "Big Bear" left a big impression during his athletic days at the Virginia School for the Deaf and the Blind.

As word of the death of Lewis Sherman "Big Bear" Harper swept through the VSDB community Saturday, former administrators, classmates and his football coach remembered a man that was loved by everyone.

Harper, who died Friday in Brownsville, Texas, had returned to his alma mater in September to be inducted into the VSDB Hall of Fame and also be part of the 35th anniversary of the school's last undefeated football in 1969.

The "Big Bear" got his nickname because of his 6-foot-3-inch, 220-pound frame.

"I taught him in PE during his early years at VSDB," said former teacher and football coach Rocco DeVito. "He was very tall and chubby at that age. Then as a teenager he hit a growth spurt."

DeVito said Harper, who ended up being a two-time first-team Deaf All-America as a junior and senior, had a good tolerance for hard work, which came from working on the family's 300-acre farm in Bedford County.

"He never complained about practice, at least not to my face," DeVito said.

"I watched him grow to be a true student-athlete. He was a wonderful leader."

Former VSDB principal Fred Yates, who was an assistant principal during Harper's career, equates the late Cardinal to current University of Virginia tackle Elton Brown.

"He was so big and strong," Yates said. "He just pushed everyone out of the way so other running backs could run through. He was a true leader."

Linda Blehm, who was a cheerleader at VSDB, said Harper loved to guess the weight of girls by comparing them to cows.

"He had this system, which he learned from working on the farm. We all loved him. He was a very gentle man, who was active in almost every club at school," Blehm said.

DeVito said the VSDB community is saddened and shocked by the loss.

"Thank God he came to the football reunion. He gave us a very moving story that will stay with all of us. He was tutoring a troubled deaf youngster in Texas, who was involved in a gang. One day Sherman showed the youngster a scrapbook of his career at VSDB. The youngster was so excited that he enrolled in a public school and ended up making first-team all-district.

"That scrapbook had a great impact on the young man, just like Sherman had on our lives at VSDB," DeVito said.
